

Keep Pesky Rabbit in their Place

No matter what you may be growing vegetables, flowers, or if you grow cereal crops, rabbits can be eating up your profits and destroying your property. Instead of standing outside with a shotgun or hiring a professional hit man, the best way to combat the furry little pesky creatures is with rabbit netting.

An electric rabbit net can be installed with ease. The electric rabbit netting will keep out the rabbits and other small creatures that want to feast on your property. Electric fencing for rabbits will not kill the creature so you do not have to worry about upsetting the wife or other animal lovers that might believe using an electric rabbit fence is cruel. You can reassure them that it only gives them a jolt enough to make them find reservations at a new location.

Most rabbit netting is around 50cm high and can be used to protect field or other areas that rabbits tend to gather. If the length is not quite enough, you can easily add more netting by way of clips. The clips will hold as many nets together as you need without losing conductivity.

Electric fencing for rabbits is a cost effective way to ensure your garden does not become the local hangout for the rabbits in the neighborhood. Other types of fencing and other deterrents do not keep rabbits away as well or as easily as the electric rabbit net. Once they feel the slight jolt from your electric rabbit netting, they will not return no matter how scrumptious your crops look from the other side of the fence.

Rabbit fencing is also a great way to keep other small creatures out of areas or to contain them as well. If you happen to have a cat that you are tired of it wandering away from home, you can use electric rabbit netting. The cat will not be able to crawl through the netting or under the netting and as long as you position it correct, it will not be able to jump over it either.

The rabbit netting for keeping cats at home should be placed at an angle toward the inside of the property. Your cat will soon learn that he cannot jump over the netting and will steer clear.

No matter the reason you want to use rabbit netting, you will be able to find the perfect electric fence kit or other accessories needed to give you peace of mind. The UK is home to many different types of types of rabbit electric netting that will surely fit your needs.

Do not wait another day to invest in something that will save your garden or your crops from a family of rabbits that decide to party on your field, purchase rabbit netting and enjoy your profits instead of feeding it to the rabbits.
